

City Names New Directors

Date: Monday, March 22, 2010

For Immediate Release

VICTORIA, BC — The City of Victoria is pleased to announce two new members of the City's senior management team, Director of Engineering and Public Works Dwayne Kalynchuk, and Director of Internal Audit and Risk Management Bill Fanous.

With over 27 years experience in the municipal sector, Dwayne Kalynchuk, PEng, joins the City after five years as the General Manager of Environmental Services with the Capital Regional District, leading the largest municipal wastewater treatment project in Canada, the Core Area Wastewater Project. Dwayne brings a well-rounded background of technical experience with strategic management skills. Prior to the CRD, he was employed by the City of St. Albert, overseeing Transit, Engineering and Public Works as well as Planning and Development departments. In 2008, Dwayne was selected one of the "Top Ten Public Works Leaders in North America" by the American Public Works Association. Dwayne is expected to start in mid-May.

Bill Fanous has now started as the new Director of Internal Audit and Risk Management, responsible for coordinating the internal audit, risk management, insurance programs, and corporate security for the City of Victoria. Bill comes from the University of Calgary, serving as their first Associate Vice President of Risk Management and prior to that was in Edmonton, where he led the Internal Audit team at ATB Financial Services, the largest Alberta-based financial institution. Bill has also worked at PricewaterhouseCoopers, Sun Life Financial and with the Ontario government.
