Victoria and Port Angeles Councils Meet Today on Tourism

Date: Friday, February 25, 2011

VICTORIA, BC — Victoria and Port Angeles City councils will meet today at Victoria City Hall to discuss ways they can support each other as tourism destinations. Other topics to be discussed include economic development opportunities and what each city is doing in terms of sustainability.

“This meeting is a good opportunity for our two port cities to exchange information on important projects and initiatives,” said Mayor Dean Fortin. “Our communities have many things in common, and through meetings like this, we can learn from one another and explore ways to build the key industries we both rely on.”

What: Meeting between Victoria and Port Angeles City Councils to discuss tourism, economic development and sustainability
When: Friday, February 25, 2011, from noon to 2 p.m.
Where: Victoria City Hall Antechamber, 1 Centennial Square

Representatives from Port Angeles met with Victoria Mayor Dean Fortin last year, but this is the first joint meeting of the current city councils. Some senior staff from both cities will also participate in the meeting.

For More Information:
Katie Josephson
Director of Corporate Communications
Cellular: 250.217.8343